

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, DECEMBER 18, 1919.

NUMBER 38.

CITY LOSES

Important Law Suit In Court of Appeals.

The case of Broadus vs. City of Lancaster, tried in the Garrard Circuit Court some time ago, in which Mr. W. J. Broadus' little son, Hubert, was given judgment against the City of Lancaster for $2000.00 and cost was affirmed in the Court of Appeals last week. The cost and damages will run the judgment up to near $2,500.

This $2500 dollars or another 2500 is needed upon our streets very badly at this time.

To Season Sausage.

To every 14 pounds of meat, put,
3 table spoons of sage,
2 table spoons black pepper,
1 table spoon red pepper,
1 table spoons salt.
Sprinkle this over the meat before cooking.

Wants The Office.

Mr. George Penny has resigned as postmaster at Stanford and we are informed that Miss Emma Hays is an applicant for the position. We wish we were in a position to hand it to her, for she would make a very capable official and is thoroughly competent, from the experience she has had for the past two years.

Auction Sale.

The United Realty Company, of Lexington, Ky will sell at public auction on Saturday morning, December 20th, 1919, promptly at 10:30 A. M. the Howard Klag farm of 146 acres located on the Lexington pike three miles below Bryantsville.

This farm will be sub-divided to suit the purchasers. Don't fail to attend on Saturday morning of this week.

To Asylum.

Littrell was tried before last week and adjudged insane and sent to the asylum. He was a man in his killing a man and then he was sent to the asylum. He was a man in his killing a man and then he was sent to the asylum. He was a man in his killing a man and then he was sent to the asylum.

A Double Header.

An entertainment will be given at the Vesta School Building Saturday Evening, December 20, 1919, at 8 P. M. This entertainment will consist of two plays and music. Play "Topsy Turvy", a comedy of two acts—very amusing throughout. by students and teachers. Admission, Children 25 cents, Adults 35 cents.

The Iron Heel In Peace.

In the midst of all the anarchistic incendiary propaganda which is sweeping the country like a prairie fire, one strong ray of hope stands out like a beacon light to the mariner in distress. That hope is the American Legion. Non-political, non-sectarian, composed of brave men from every city, village and hamlet of the nation—on the farms, the factories and the counting rooms—it has adopted the credo a great slogan—AMERICANISM.

It will fight the battles of its country in peace, as it fought them in war.

It will insist that America is for Americans and those who are loyal to American institutions and traditions.

It will insist that the congress and the government cease temporizing with radicals whose ultimate aims are destruction and commercial piracy.

It will insist that law and order be preserved, and if the constituted authorities are impotent to control its mighty arm.

The American Legion has a big foot and is growing by leaps and bounds.

The traitor and the disturber should be wary, lest he be crushed under the tread of his iron heel.

ANDY BEAZLEY

Charged With Killing Bill Denton Held Without Bail.

Andy Beazley charged with killing Bill Denton several weeks ago, had his examining trial before Judge Hardin last Saturday and was held over to the grand jury without bail. He will probably be tried at the next term of court.

ALIENATION SUITS

Popular In Garrard County.

Mrs. Ruth Davis sued Francis Mosier for $5000.00 in the Garrard Circuit Court last week for the alienation of her husband, Jeff Davis, affections. This is the second alienation suit in this County in the last twelve months. The trial of these cases furnish lots of amusement for the public.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS

Named For Each Precinct In County.

Mr. J. K. Letcher, of Shelbyville, was in the city last week winding up the affairs of the Census Enumerators for Garrard county. Mr. Letcher is the assistant to George M. Buchanan, of Shelbyville, who is the district supervisor of the census.

The result of the applications have not been made public, and will not be until the announcement comes from Washington, at which time they will be printed in the Record.

Give Us A Call.

Next Monday will be County Court Day in Lancaster and we have many of our subscribers whose expirations for the Record is about out and some few that is past overdue. Next Monday when in town will be an ideal time to drop in and renew your subscription to the Record.

The price of news print and the immediate danger of not being able to buy any more in the near future, has gotten us newspaper men sitting up taking notice. Look at the label on this paper, the date to which it is paid follows immediately after the name and if it doesn't read '1920' you owe us $1.50 at least and we trust you will remit at once.

Christmas Service.

LANCASTER BAPTIST CHURCH.

On Christmas Eve at 7 o'clock, the Lancaster Baptist Sunday School will give a very enjoyable entertainment. We are very anxious that our entire enrollment shall be present. Every department in the school will have a part on the program, which will consist of songs and recitations. Sunday morning at the close of the Sunday School hour there will be given a little play, entitled: "Keeping Christmas". Then at the preaching service the pastor will speak on the subject: "The Wonderful Christ". Be sure and attend all of these services. We shall try and make them a blessing to you and your presence may bless us.

C. D. Strother, Pastor.

Such A Naughty Man!

A New York doctor by the name of Simon says that "as civilization progresses women grow uglier."

Tut, tut, piffle, and a little more. It can't be possible that this poor male creature ever had a wife, or a mother, or a sister, or sweetheart, or he would not thus have trampled the forest flower that scents the earth and dims the radiance of the sun.

The milk of human kindness and the essence of compassion have oozed from the heels of this descendant of the monkey, and have left him a gibbering, chattering prototype of his hairy ancestor.

Woman growing uglier?

Look around you! Note the freshness, the bloom and the intellect of the women of this town.

Does any man dare to characterize OUR women as less beautiful or charming than they were when civilization was young?

Out upon this blasphemous! He is the reincarnation of an ape come to earth again come to earth again to cast the blight of his shadow upon the mother of man and the hope of the world.

Oh, you naughty thing!

CORRECT STATEMENT OF FACTS.

Of the Affair Between Two Attorneys in the Garrard Circuit Court.

The Richmond Register published an account of an encounter between two prominent attorneys of this district during the progress of the case of Calico against Hill, in the Garrard Circuit Court, during its term just closed, and as the two attorneys are well and prominently known in the district we have taken the trouble to ascertain the true state of facts and find that the account in the Register is very erroneous and misleading in several respects. In the first place after the affair had ended Judge Herdman, who was presiding, not only severely reprimanded the attorneys in open court, but also inflicted on Judge Puryear a fine of $20.00 for being in contempt of Court for having called Robinson a liar and fined Robinson $20.00 for being in contempt of Court for striking Puryear.

Robinson stated that Elbert Calico the husband of the plaintiff, whose affections were alleged to have been alienated, was not present and had escaped all the humiliation of the trial while the defendant, Mrs. Hill, had been compelled to face a curious and titillating audience and subjected to a long examination and cross-examination by attorneys and had been humiliated by the slurs of the attorneys on the other side. Judge Puryear took exception to this statement as a personal reflection on him and made an objection to the Court, which was over-ruled, but which Judge Puryear did not hear and Robinson then continued his speech and said it was true that slurs had been cast against his clients and Judge Puryear, standing up at the time within arms length of Robinson, stated "It is a lie".

Whereupon, Robinson struck him and they clinched, and were separated in a few seconds without injury to either party, and the Court thereafter reprimanded and fined both of them for contempt. We think in justice to the Court and to the gentlemen involved a true statement of the facts should be made as above set forth. Both attorneys immediately overlooked the instance and dropped it, and apologized to the Court, protesting that they meant no contempt of Court, and renewed their friendship which has been of long standing.

Transylvania Campus Covers Ten Acres.

The Campus of Transylvania College at Lexington covers ten acres of land in the heart of the city. The College is just across the street from the Carnegie Library, and students, therefore, are close to that institution, as well as having the advantage of the rare old library of Transylvania, which has attracted the attention of scholars the country over.

Last Summons For Aged Citizen.

Mr. Frank Holtzclaw, aged 91 years died at his home on the Crab Orchard pike last Monday morning and was buried in the cemetery at this place last Tuesday. Mr. Holtzclaw was one of our oldest and most honored citizens, and leaves a host of friends who will be sorry to know that he is no more.

His wife preceded him to the grave many years ago. He is survived by three children, Mr. Frank Holtzclaw, Mrs. W. M. Mahan of this county and Mrs. W. M. Stout of Lincoln.

Small Newspapers Face Extinction.

Washington.—Three thousand small newspapers face suspension, if not extinction, unless the scarcity of news print is soon remedied. Representative Anthony, republican, of Kansas, told the House postoffice committee Monday, in urging a favorable report on his bill to limit the size of newspapers and periodicals using second class mail privileges. He asserted the present shortage is due to rapacity of the great publishing companies buying all the news print they can lay their hands on. He said the situation for the small publishers is all but tragic.

TOBACCO MARKET GOOD

Lincoln County Weed Makes A Big Average.

Up to the time the Record goes to press Tobacco is rolling in to the Garrard Tobacco Warehouse and good prices are received.

The best market of the season was Tuesday when Harris, Woods and Farrell of Stanford sold their crop of 2785 pounds over the breaks at an average of $93.09, one basket containing 245 pounds and one basket containing 315 pounds sold for one dollar, their lowest price being 74cts per pound.

The Manager of the local house stated to a RECORD representative that the House would close the sales for the Holidays on Friday, December 19th and would re-open on Monday December 22nd, but would be open to receive tobacco every day except Christmas day.

We give below some of the sales during the week, we wish that space would allow us to give all crop averages.

Naylor and Locker sold one basket of 230 pounds at 90 cents;

D. W. Parson, one basket of 330 pounds at 96 cents and one basket of 215 pounds at 90 cents;

Henry Arnold 640 pounds at 60 cents;

R. K. Speake one basket average 92 cents.

Carrier and Stewart of Crab Orchard sold their entire crop of 3075 pounds at an average of 65 cents.

Donahue, three baskets of 290 pounds at an average of 94 cents.

Henderson and Meadows one basket of 230 pounds at 98 cents.

H. B. Cox, 4 baskets of 350 pounds at 98 cents.

IN JAIL

Charged With Murder.

Mrs. James Padgett was placed in jail a few days ago charged with killing her husband. The difficulty occurred several weeks ago and after an operation upon the skull of Padgett it was thought that he would recover and Mrs. Padgett was released upon a bond of $800.

However after several weeks Padgett became worse and died from the effects of the wound, being struck on the head with a stick in the hands of his wife. She was indicted by the recent grand jury for murder and the former charge of assault was stricken from the docket. She will probably be tried at the next term of Circuit Court.

Famous Kentucky Authors Graduates of Transylvania.

James Lane Allen, whose "Choir Invisible" and other books have been read by hundreds of thousands of Americans, and John Fox Jr., whose "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" and "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" gave the world a true conception of life in the Kentucky mountains, both were graduates of Transylvania College.

Senator Mark Smith Once a Student Of Transylvania.

Senator Mark Smith, of Arizona, was once a student at Transylvania College at Lexington. Senator Smith has taken front rank among the statesmen of the new Southwest, and often comes back to Kentucky to visit the old home at Cynthiana, and the scenes of his student labors at the Lexington College, where he laid the foundation of his subsequent career.

PROHIBITION LAW UPHELD.

Supreme Court Declares Law Constitutional.

Court Is Unanimous.

WASHINGTON.—Wartime prohibition was held constitutional Monday by the Supreme Court in a unanimous decision. Thus vanished the hopes of many for a "wet" holiday time.

No decision was rendered on the so-called beer cases involving the constitutionality of the Volstead law, the prohibition enforcement act, framed to carry out the intent of the prohibition amendment in the Constitution.

In passing, however, Associate Justice Brandeis did hold that the prohibition amendment was binding on the States as well as the Federal Government.

The court entirely reversed the contention of the "wets" that wartime prohibition was outside the wartime powers of Congress and pointed out that wartime control of food and railroads still were in effect.

The decision added one of the final milestones to the long fight to make the country dry.

The court will render opinions again next Monday at which time the beer cases are expected to be decided, after which the court will recess until January 5.

Upon the court's decision on the prohibition enforcement law will depend whether the Federal Government has at hand any legal means for making the amendment effective. The constitutionality of wartime prohibition, however, the dries are confident, will keep the country dry until the amendment is carried into effect by law of its own.

Federal Court decrees in New York dismissing proceedings brought by Dryfoos, Blum & Company to compel internal revenue officials to permit the withdrawal from bond of whiskey for beverage purposes were affirmed by the court.

In deciding the question the Supreme Court also dissolved injunctions restraining revenue officials from interfering with the removal from bond of about 60,000,000 gallons of whisky valued at approximately $75,000,000 held by the Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Company of Louisville, Ky.

The judgment of the court in the Kentucky and New York cases was unanimous.

Justice Brandeis said the Government did not appropriate the liquor by stopping its domestic sale, as the way was left open for exporting it.

The signing of the armistice did not abrogate the war powers of Congress, Justice Brandeis said. Justice Brandeis called attention to the continued control of the railroads and rearmament of powers by the Government relative to coal and sugar under war acts to show that the Government continues to exercise various war powers despite the signing of the armistice.

The constitutional prohibition amendment is binding on the Federal Government as well as the States and supersedes State laws, the court declared.

Justice Brandeis said there was no basis for the contention that President Wilson's statement in his message vetoing the prohibition enforcement act that the war had come to an end was a proclamation announcing the termination of the war.

Good Roads Meeting.

A delegation from the counties of Hart, Green, Taylor and Marion county, will join a delegation from Boyle county and meet with the Fiscal Court of Garrard county next Saturday morning. The date has already been arranged with the Fiscal Court and the meeting will attract much interest from the public, as it is called in the interest of "Good Roads" and especially the routing of the "Midland Trail" which had some prospects of coming through Lancaster and Garrard county.

BIG SUM NEEDED BY TRANSYLVANIA

Dr. Crossfield Estimates Immediate Needs of College at $897,000, and five year Requirements at $2,379,000.

Special.

LEXINGTON, KY. Dec. 17th '19. The immediate needs of Transylvania College, the great training school of the Disciples of Christ, generally known as the Christian Church, as estimated by Dr. Richard Henry Crossfield, its president, total $897,000, if it is to continue to do the class of work expected of it by the church. Dr. Crossfield also estimates the five year needs of the institution and its auxiliaries, Hamilton College and the College of the Bible, at $2,379,000.

At a meeting of the representatives of the various colleges of this Church throughout the entire country, which was held at Indianapolis, December 3, these "Askings" were approved by the Church's Board of Education.

These estimates of Dr. Crossfield will be presented to the Interchurch World Movement Committee by Dr. Crossfield when it meets at Atlantic City in January, when that body will pass upon the needs of the Christian Colleges of the country, not only immediate, but for the next five years.

It is pointed out by Dr. Crossfield that if Transylvania is to make the progress of the past the college must pay living salaries to its instructors, and that Transylvania and the College of the Bible must have the highest class of instructors. The advanced pay of other institutions is bound in time to cost Transylvania some of her most valuable men unless she is able to pay them proper salaries. Dr. Crossfield shows that assistant professors in other colleges, properly endowed and supported, are paid as much as heads of departments at Transylvania.

It is probable that steps will be taken at an early date to present the needs of Transylvania, which has trained 90 per cent of the preachers of the Christian Church in Kentucky, to the church in general, as well as to the alumni of Transylvania, the College of the Bible and Hamilton College.

LICENSING OF DOGS

Beats Taxing Them, State Board Finds.

New Law Boosts Revenue, Cuts Bills For Sheep, Report Shows.

Frankfort, Ky., County Tax Commissioners in 1918 missed 56,289 dogs according to the report in the Department of Agriculture. The commissioners assessed 179,128 dogs, while licenses were paid on 217,764, another 9,301 were impounded and 8,462 killed for failure of their owners to pay license.

Receipts for licenses up to November 1 were $261,864.80. Had the State depended on the Tax Commissioners' reports at $1 the head, as under the old law, the receipts, which go for payment of claims for sheep killed by dogs, would have been $179,128, or $82,636.80 less, and 56,289 stray dogs would have been engaged in running up the sheep claims against the fund.

The value of the new law, in preventing dogs running at large, considering the increased price of sheep, is shown by the fact that 1918 claims for sheep killed amounted to $68,801.83, compared to $35,185.77 for 1919, and $13,600.48 of the 1919 fund goes to pay 1918 claims. Under the old system dog taxes in each county were prorated among claimants for sheep killed, and each year took care of its own claims. Under the new law the claims must be paid in full, and they stand against the fund from year to year until paid.

In consequence the new law will not have a fair try out until all old claims are paid and the fund for the current year claims against it. It is expected then that the county school funds will receive some benefit from it.

GRANDMA DIXON

By HELEN PATTERSON.

Carefully Grandma Dixon loosened the moist earth around the roots of her famous larkspur, shook the particles of dirt from the trowel and, before standing erect, touched the tender shoots lovingly with her fingers.

The larkspur meant more than tall blue flowers to her. It meant memories of the past; memories of the morning when a young soldier in a faded blue uniform had found her rejoicing over their first blossom. There had been four weary years of war and this, their first meeting, the larkspur had witnessed. Since that morning the flower had occupied a place of honor in her garden.

"Want any help, grandma?" asked a young man looking over the fence.

"You know, I'm great on digging."

"Bless you, Dick. Of course I know it, when I look at this garden, but there is nothing to do this morning. Thank you. Come here and tell me about your work."

"I'll come over, but there is nothing to tell. I haven't any yet."

"Do you mean to say, Richard Hawkins, that you are not going back to your old work?" asked grandma, as the young man vaulted the low fence and stood beside her.

"That's just it, grandma. Your humble servant has to find a new job. You know, the girls are doing our work so well that many firms are keeping them, and Bolton & Mason's is one of them."

"But the girls will certainly resign when they know you are home again," said grandma. "I remember when Almer came home from the Civil war, I gave up his school I had been teaching and we were married."

"I'll bet you did," answered Richard. "but whose coming through the gate?"

"Why, bless me! If it isn't Betty," said grandma, hurrying to meet a young girl dressed in a stylish suit and a very becoming small hat. "Come on Dick, you know Betty. Why, you used to play with her when she was a tiny girl. You remember, she is the only grandchild I have."

Nothing bath, Richard followed Grandma Dixon down the garden path and was reintroduced to Betty. For a moment a pair of laughing blue eyes, the color of the larkspur, looked into his while they uttered a few commonplace remarks, and then Betty followed grandma into the house. It was not until Richard had walked the length of the garden that he remembered, with a queer feeling, that he had seen those same blue eyes in the girl that occupied his desk at Bolton & Mason's office.

In the meantime, Betty in the house had casually asked grandma "When had Richard's people moved back to the old homestead?"

"They haven't moved back," answered grandma. "Richard is spending the week with me trying to recuperate from his work of the last two years."

"Was he in all of the war?" asked Betty.

"Most of it," replied grandma, "although it's little he talks about it. Just now he's all upset over not getting his old work back."

"But grandma," protested Betty, "perhaps the girl needs the money she is earning as much as he does. I know some of the girls in our office are taking care of their mothers and younger brothers and sisters."

"It may be all right for those girls to keep our returned soldiers out of a job, but what about the girls like you, Betty Dixon, that don't really need to work?" indignantly asked grandma.

"Why—grandma—you know we girls took up their work so the boys could go and fight, and we have all bought Liberty bonds and worked for the Red Cross," stammered Betty as she thought of the young men she had casually glanced at at the cement works yesterday.

"Yes, you all did your best while the war was being fought and won, but now that it's over, show your gratitude to the boys in a more substantial way than cheers. I'm ashamed of you."

"You won't need to be ashamed of me any longer, grandma," said Betty meekly. "I'll make good. I just hadn't thought about it before; and now I'm going to look up your tulips."

But it wasn't tulips; it was Richard that Betty found sitting disconsolately on an old seat by the lilacs. No one could resist Betty when she wanted to be extra charming and soon they were talking and laughing like children.

The next day Betty returned home and the day afterwards Richard received two letters; one was from Betty, which after reading, he kissed and put in his inside pocket. The other one was from Bolton & Mason, inviting him to call at their office.

It was at the close of the summer, on one moonlight night that the tall blue flowers awoke from their sleep to hear a low voice say:

"Betty, I'm to be made sales manager next week and the salary is very good—and—oh, Betty, dear, I've always loved and wanted you. Won't you please say 'Yes'?"

But as Richard's arms closed around Betty the larkspur discreetly turned away and whispered:

"Did you hear that?"

"Yes," answered another sleepily, "and it reminds me of the story of another young girl and the soldier in blue."

Priceless Memories of the Great War

Ten years from now the kiddies of today will be reading about the Great War and reviving the songs that stirred our patriotism in the dark days of 1918.

Do you realize that those songs can never again be sung as they were sung during the Great War. Could anyone sing "We are coming Father Abraham" as the Yanks sang it in the sixties—or "Dixie" as those Johnnie Rebs sang it then? Could anyone sing "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" the way we middle aged folks used to sing it in Spanish-American War days? Of course not. The same with the songs of the Great War.

We have a limited stock of Edison RE-CREATIONS of war songs sung by popular Edison artists during the war. They will be priceless within a few years.

Come in and listen to them and add a few to your collection for your children and your children's children.

YOU WILL ENJOY A VISIT TO OUR DISPLAY OF THIS BEAUTIFUL FURNITURE AND YOU ARE MOST CORDIALLY INVITED TO COME IN AT YOUR CONVENIENCE WHETHER OR NOT YOU WISH TO MAKE AN IMMEDIATE PURCHASE.

The Xmas Opportunity

The opportunity to purchase Karpen Furniture at special prices is not frequent at this time when the demand for this famous line is far greater than possible supply. Following our custom of former years, however, we are offering a few pieces of this desirable Furniture as special and it is an exceptional opportunity for the new home maker, or, for those wishing to replenish or brighten up the old home. The suite illustrated represents the best values in mahogany in the market today. Good designs, construction and material combine to make it pleasing to the eye, and it will outlive a generation. The Karpen trademark absolutely guarantees the purchaser. A vast lot of furniture is sold today without a guarantee of any kind. Buyers run risks in buying such Furniture. We back the KARPEN trademark.

Old "1080" Most Wonderful Car In War—

So Says English War Correspondent Recounting Experiences In Holy Land.

W. T. Massey, noted British Journalist, now recording the Prince of Wales Tour through Canada and the United States, for the London Daily Telegraph, of London, England, was Official War Correspondent with the English Army—under General Allenby—which wrested the Holy Land and Syria from the Turks.

When telling of his experiences, he says that he "used a Ford in many a journey from Beersheba to Jerusalem and to Nazareth, Damascus and Aleppo," and that "in Allenby's final push, this trusty old car took me more than 4,000 miles in six weeks and I believe within one year it traveled over 30,000 miles in a country where roads are few, and these the worst in the world."

"In the Sinai country it is very sandy and it is quite a common sight to see a Ford running along with two rolls of wire netting secured to the foot boards. When the car gets to a place where the sand is impassable, the driver unrolls the netting over the roadway and thus an easily passable wire road is constructed; in fact in some parts of the country permanent wire roads have been made and over these the car runs along easily and smoothly, at thirty miles an hour."

Mr. Massey also stated that the Ford played no small part in helping "to deliver the Holy Land and Syria from the Turks" and that his "old 1080" Ford was the most wonderful car in the war. So highly does he regard the merits of the Ford car that he has asked permission to address the men of the Ford factory, who make Ford cars, to tell them his experiences and thank them for their good work in building such reliable motor cars. He expects to visit the Ford factory on the day the Prince of Wales visits Windsor.

A Proclamation.

WHEREAS, by Act of Congress approved March 3, 1919, the Fourteenth Decennial Census of the U. S. is to be taken beginning on the second day of January 1920; and

WHEREAS, a correct enumeration of the population every ten years is required by the Constitution of the United States for the purpose of determining the representation of the several States in the House of Representatives; and

WHEREAS, it is of the utmost importance to all the people of the United States that this should be a complete and accurate report of the population and resources of the Nation.

Now, Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby declare and make known, that under the law aforesaid, it is the duty of every person to answer all questions on the census schedules applying to him and the family to which he belongs, and to the farm occupied by him or his family and that any person refusing to do so is subject to penalty.

The sole purpose of the Census is to secure general statistical information regarding the population and resources of the country and replies are required from individuals only to permit the compilation of such general statistics. No person can be harmed in any way by furnishing the information required. The Census has nothing to do with taxation, with military or jury service, with the compulsion of school attendance, with the regulation of immigration or with the enforcement of any national, state or local law or ordinance. There need be no fear that any disclosure will be made regarding any individual person or his affairs. For the due protection of the rights and interests of the person furnishing information every employee of the Census Bureau is prohibited under heavy penalty, from disclosing any information which may thus come to his knowledge.

I therefore earnestly urge upon all persons to answer promptly, completely and accurately all inquiries addressed to them by the enumerators or other employees of the Census Bureau and thereby to contribute their share toward making this great and public undertaking a success.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

DONE in the District of Columbia this tenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and forty fourth.

RICH TOBACCO

PRIZES

At State Fair Wanted
and Dealers Offer to Put Up Half.

George D. Karsner, a prominent farmer of Lexington, says that W. L. Petty tobacco buyer and redryer, as proposed that the State Fair offer prizes for tobacco at 1920 fair and said the tobacco warehousemen would put up dollar for dollar with the State as premiums on Burley tobacco. Mr. Karsner in an open letter to the State Board of Agriculture, says Mr. Petty authorized him to say that if the State Fair would offer $20,000 in tobacco prizes, the tobacco interests would put up $10,000 of it.

Mr. Karsner suggests that the coming session of the General Assembly make provision for a building large enough to house such an exhibit and that the State Fair also offer larger premiums for county agricultural exhibits, pointing to the fact that much larger premiums are offered for such exhibits in almost every state near Kentucky.

The Industrious Bee.

The bee has two distinct stomachs. In the first it stores away the honey from the flowers until such time as it is ready to yield it up, while the other stomach is used simply and solely for digestion purposes. When the bee is ready to deposit the honey it contracts the muscles of the stomach and the honey is ejected through the mouth.

The Almighty Dollar.

Bribery has been the downfall of many public men during the course of history. Francis Bacon the greatest thinker of his age, was ruined by his cupidity. Lord Chancellor Macclesfield and Waterbury were destroyed by the same vice. Benedict Arnold sold a fort in New York to the enemy for $1,575. For this same sin Gergel betrayed Austria, Atholpoel forsok David and Judas delivered up Christ.

The whale rarely, if ever, swallows anything larger than a herring. Although the head is of enormous size, from one-quarter to one-third length of the body, and the mouth fifteen to twenty feet long and six to eight feet wide, the opening of the gullet is not larger than a man's fist.

Sea-Island Cotton.

Practically all of the sea-island cotton is produced in the states of Georgia, Florida and South Carolina, the finest coming from the chain of islands off the Carolina coast. It is well named sea-island cotton, as when grown away from the coast the fiber rapidly degenerates into upland cotton unless seed grown in the islands is obtained for planting successive crops.

Same Old Arithmetic.

Some university professors are talking about getting out a new arithmetic. However, our guess is that it will be the boys just as much to discover how long it will take one man to load a wall 14 feet long and six feet high and 12 inches thick, if eight men can build a wall three times that size in four days. Arithmetic has always been the enemy of school boys; they may fool with it as much as they will but they'll never find a way to make it pleasant to take.

Tree Trunks Made Cisterns.

The gigantic baobab tree of central Africa, the trunk of which sometimes attains a diameter of forty feet, often serves as a natural cistern, retaining rain-water in large quantities in a cavity formed at the top of the broad trunk. Taking the hint thus afforded by nature, the Arabs artificially hollow out the huge baobabs and fill them with water during the prevalence of rains, as a provision against the dry season. These cisterns are in many cases twenty feet in height and eight or ten feet in diameter.

Pepto-Mangan Obtainable in Liquid or Tablets—Insist on "Gude's"
The Genuine.

There is really no reason why men or women with thin, watery blood and consequent poor health should remain in that unfortunate condition. Thin, nervous, run-down, tired people never get much happiness out of life.

Men and women with the bloom of health in their cheeks, a cheerful, sunny disposition and an attractive personality are the folks who get most of life's enjoyment, pleasure, and success.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan furnishes thin, watery blood with the necessary nourishment to enrich it, enabling it to supply energy, vitality, and strength to every part of the body. Physicians recommend Gude's Pepto-Mangan to patients suffering from anemia because its beneficial and lasting qualities are well known to the medical profession.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is obtainable in either liquid or tablet form. Both forms contain exactly the same strength and medicinal properties.

When you buy Pepto-Mangan of your druggist, be sure the name "Gude's" is on the package. Without "Gude's" it is not Pepto-Mangan. Advertisement.

Pensacola, Florida.

Pensacola lies in the extreme western portion of Florida on the west shore of Pensacola Bay and about seven miles from the Gulf of Mexico. From the earliest records obtainable, the first Spanish settlement made on American soil was during the year 1558 or 1559, where Pensacola now stands; this being four years before the founding of St. Augustine, often considered the oldest city in America. During the years following, Pensacola was the scene of many fierce battles between the Spaniards, French, English, Indians and Americans, and the ruins of some of the old forts are among the sights to be seen by present day visitors to Pensacola. The modern Pensacola is a busy industrial center, with fine buildings and many splendid homes.

Pensacola offers much of interest from a sight-seeing and climatic standpoint. The Pensacola Navy Yard, established in 1832, is one of the famous sights of the South and is now used by the U. S. Government as a Naval Aeronautical School. Near by is Fort Barrancas, with its marine hospital, national cemetery and other points of interest, the lighthouse and ruins of Forts McRae and San Carlos. Across the Sound on the extreme western end of Santa Rosa Island stands Fort Pickens, guarding the entrance of Pensacola Bay from the Gulf.

There are delightful roads for automobiles, horseback riding and driving.

Located in a thickly wooded district directly back of Fort Barrancas is Fort Redoubt, an abandoned fort, connected with Barrancas by underground passages, leading into deserted dungeons of either fort. All of these forts are easily reached by street cars.

Pensacola is situated in the very center of miles and miles of fine hunting and fishing territory. Santa Rosa Sound, Escambia Bay, Perdido Bay, Choctawhatchee Bay, etc., and many other places equally attractive to the eye of the huntman and fisherman are in easy access by launch from Pensacola. There is plenty of bird shooting, wild turkey, ducks, deer, etc. Deep water fishing is to be had in the Gulf of Mexico, which is about seven miles south of Pensacola, on the other side of Santa Rosa wide and whose sands are as white as Island, which is about a half-mile snow.

"Agin the Govment"

By C. M. MORRISON.

Somehow or other old Billy Gilligan got a grouse against these United States back about the time of the panic of 1873. He got the idea that the old U. S. A. had cold-decked him somehow or other, so he sort of began to live by himself over on his old place, that was mostly grown up with briars and unpruned apple trees.

He had fought in an Illinois regiment in the Civil War. But for 40 years he had been pointed out as a sort of a neighborhood curiosity, "the man who wouldn't apply for a pension." He would roth at the mouth every time he saw a tax collector, and it grew to be one battle to get a dime out of him for the "unen and purposes of the state."

He stood off every "driver" that came along during the late unpleasantness, and they finally let him alone. He stayed holed up right along. He actually didn't know when the war began or when it ended. He used to come out of that tangle of an old place that he called home and go back in without saying a dozen words to anybody and what he did say was mostly grunts.

Nobody knows how he first learned that one of his sister's boys had been over there and had come back with a medal or two, one from the war department of the United States and another one that the French general pinned on him one frosty morning over in the Meuse-Argonne sector, where so many Americans lost their lives.

And nobody knows when old Billy Gilligan got hold of that lad and carried him off to the old rattletrap of a house back of the apple trees and the brush and sat there all night by the old fireplace learning that there had been about the biggest war that the stars ever looked down on.

It was long about Christmas when old Billy rounded up the lad, seemingly. He kept him up there for a day or no, just naturally making in every thing that the boy told him. It must have been an awful job to get the full story and the full horror and the understanding of all those anxious days that the rest of the world had been trying to stand up under a day at a time for the full four years.

It is a fair guess that the danger that the one lad had gone through, the horror of the U-boats, the landing in a strange country, the desperate punhes against a desperate and a strange enemy who fought with fire and poison, must have stirred the old man out of his calloused shell that the years had built around him.

Seemingly it stirred something in his old heart and brain that had been slowly dying since the days of 1865. He had been a man without a country all these years. And while he had been up there the nation, the same nation for which he had fought a full half century ago, had been going ahead and growing and extending its power and its principles.

He must have done a lot of mighty solemnly serious thinking for a day or so. The boy had gone back to his mother's home and old Billy had been left alone to sit before the ancient fireplace and meditate on what had come to pass.

His thinking took a strange turn. It happened to be Christmas Eve when he came into town. That was not a habit of his. It is doubtful if the oldest inhabitant recalled seeing old Billy on the streets at that particular time. He came like a man in a hurry and with his mind made up, and came up to the post office steps. There was a big crowd there, and he hesitated a minute and crossed over to the bank.

"Have you got any blanks for me to take out Liberty Bonds?" he said when he had reached the window. The assistant cashier rubbed his eyes and stared. "Why no, Mr. Gilligan," he stammered, "the loans are all over a long time ago. Didn't you know that?"

"No-o," faltered the old man at the window. "I didn't. You see—well, I have been a fool. I didn't understand about this war and I wouldn't let anybody tell me. Now, if it ain't too late I want your help. You see, I heard a lot of things recently."

That boy, George, he is back and he has been telling me about this whole thing. I simply didn't know, that was all. And now the old government has made a man and a soldier and a better American than I am out of him. And it put a medal on him, a medal that he deserves.

"I tell you, sir, that it is a square government and the best that there is on this earth. It came in and it stopped the Kaiser, and now men can go on living and having a chance at happiness. I fought against slavery—that boy and other boys have been fighting against the same thing. The government hadn't changed. It was me. And now, sir, isn't there something where a few dollars will help?"

The cashier thought a minute and brought from the safe an engraved slip of paper. "I'll tell you," said he. "Here is a Treasury Savings Certificate. The government will sell you this for about $900 and it will be worth $1,000 one of these days. Do you want that much?"

The old man fumbled a minute, counted out a roll of bills and took the certificate. "I'm no longer agin the government," he said as he turned to go. "I'm an American and I don't care who knows it."

Happily hop to the Government shop. To buy a War Savings Stamp dandy; One for you, and one for us, And one for Brother Sandy!

COOKING FOR CUPID

By ESTHER MILLER.

"Is that your last word, mother?" asked Marion, her voice quivering and the long-suppressed tears slowly filling her eyes.

Mrs. Harrison lowered the book she had been reading, tried to smother a yawn with two bejeweled fingers, and, adjusting her glasses, looked up at her daughter. Her voice was very tired when she spoke:

"My dear, don't be absurd. You have my consent to give as much of your time as you wish to war relief work and charitable functions, but don't speak to me again of cooking school and domestic science. It is another foolish idea of Harvey's that has invaded your head. Harvey's talk about independence and equality is as impossible as it is amusing, and his opinion of a model wife in most unerring."

There was fire in her eyes and a stubborn click, click when her small heels tapped against the pavement as Marion walked down the street half an hour later. Mrs. Harrison hunched alone that noon, after Jane had informed her that Marion was not in her room and nowhere to be found in the house.

It was a neat, pink-cheeked and rather excited young person who entered Murphy's employment bureau. Marion was hardly inside the door when she was grabbed by a sharp-eyed office assistant. "What do you want?" this person inquired. "Cooking or chamber work, or do you want laundry work?"

"I haven't specialized in any particular line of housework," said Marion, bravely. "I prefer to take entire charge of the home of a small family," she ventured on.

"I see. General housework." The assistant seemed satisfied and, turning around, called into the inner office: "Mrs. Murphy, here is a girl who wants general housework. Is Mrs. Southern still here?"

Marion was ushered into the waiting ladies' sanctum and confronted with a middle-aged, motherly looking lady. The introduction was informal. It appeared that Mrs. Southern had closed up her city house and let her servants go when her only son enlisted, at the beginning of the war. She had rented a small apartment in the suburbs and devoted her time to patriotic service.

"One servant is all I need at present," she explained, "and you appear to be just the kind of a girl I would like to have around." Marion felt as flattered as she was happy, over stumbling into a position without any trouble. She agreed on the terms and promised to come that afternoon.

If ever there was an ambitious cook, waitress and chambermaid, all in one, it was Miss Harrison, queen of hearts of Lieut. Harvey Hainsworth. The first week saw "Mary" fail in most of her attempts at keeping house; the second week saw a slight improvement; the third gave fair promise, and the fourth brought forth Mrs. Southern's genuine satisfaction.

One day when "Mary" was clearing the breakfast table, Mrs. Southern came into the room, waving a telegram at her, happily: "My son has arrived from France and he wires from New York that he will be home tonight, Mary," she said. "He will be here for dinner and he is bringing a friend," she added.

Mary put her heart and soul in the preparation for that dinner. She wanted to make this homecoming doubly memorable for the mother and son.

Presently Mrs. Southern came to the door and said: "All right, Mary, we are ready." Marion proceeded to serve the soup. As she put the first plate before the hostess she could not help noticing the pleased expression on the face of the young officer to the left.

She carried in the second plate and was just going to set it down in front of the guest of the night, when all of a sudden she stopped, as if hypnotized at the sight of the wavy brown hair of the young man. The soup plate trembled in her hand, and when the owner of the brown hair turned his head toward the drooping plate, Marion gave a startled little cry and dropped the plate on the immaculate tablecloth.

The officer was on his feet before anybody had time to utter a sound. "For heaven's sake, Marion," he cried, seizing the two small wrists, his eyes wandering from the frightened, surprised and happy face of the girl to the bewildered hostess and back again to the now radiant face. "Marion, what are you doing here?"

Harvey stooped down and kissed the smiling roselip and the dimples. Then, seeing that the hostess needed some explanation, he apologized to the hostess and continued: "Mrs. Southern, allow me to introduce my fiancée, Miss Harrison."

Mrs. Southern, who had watched the scene with mingled surprise, sweet understanding and regret, reached out her hands to the couple when she answered: "Allow me to congratulate you upon the possession of a prize jewel! We will lay another cover and make this a double reunion. But I shall have a hard time finding somebody to take the place of my 'Mary.'"

A suspicious smell of burnt food approached the little group in the dining room. The next minute Marion had fled, and from the kitchen came the clatter of a tin pan on the floor, accompanied by a wailing young voice: "Oh, dear, my Victory biscuits are ruined!"

Relieve Your Rheumatism For 25c.

NR does it by improving digestion, assimilation and elimination—the logical way.

NR Today—Relief or No Pay

There are three vital processes of human existence—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of the waste.

Let anything interfere with these processes, let them be interrupted or improperly carried on, and sickness of some kind follows.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to absorb the full amount of food and that in turn often means liver overworked, B. D., weak, nervous, enervated, etc. Poor elimination means a concentration of waste matter within the system, the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism, due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain toxic waste matter, can be expected to yield to a remedy that fails to correct the condition responsible for it, and a person who takes a remedy that fails to correct the condition is liable to be attacked again.

Therapeutic action in all cases of rheumatism, the logical way. Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain results? A box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-four days—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

And Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the whole system. You'll feel like a new person when you've taken NR Tablets a week. You've tried the expensive medicine and doctor, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, recommended and recommended by Honor Not All Gutenberg's.

Printing is said to have been introduced to the world Aug. 14, 1437. John Gutenberg stands at the head of the early typographers, supported by the genius of Schoeffer and the generous patronage of Faust. Gutenberg used only blocks, and to Schoeffer is due the movable type cast from matrices. Chaston, who introduced the art into England, began life as a trader, but learned printing at Cologne. The first printed book on record is "The Psalter" which John Faust and Schoeffer published at Metz in 1457.

In Death Valley.

Death valley is a narrow area between the Panamint and Funeral mountains in California. It is traversed by the Amargosa river, which is usually a dry channel, though probably it was formerly full of water. The level of the valley is covered with salt, supposed to have been brought by the torrents from the surrounding desert and left on the evaporation of the water. Death valley is said to be the hottest and driest place in the United States.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Theodor's Black-Draught. In fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. It certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Theodor's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the regularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Theodor's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Theodor's the original and genuine. It is

WOMEN EXCEED MEN IN JAPANESE FACTORIES

850,000 Japanese Women Work at Average Daily Wage of Ten to Twenty Cents for a Twelve Hour Day.

There are more women in industry in Japan than there are men, according to a statement recently made by the War Work Council of the Young Women's Christian Association.

The world war has brought 850,000 women and girls into the daily grind of industry according to this statement; 30,000 of them little girls under fifteen years of age who work twelve hours at a wage of ten to twenty cents a day, that the world may have silk dresses and munitions.

In Tokyo alone, a city of two and one-half million people, there are 160,000 women employed in sixty-two industries and businesses varying from work as telephone operators, clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers to work in silk and other sorts of factories and domestic work.

Each year thousands of these women go back to their homes in the country, broken in health and victims of tuberculosis because of the poor conditions under which they work and live. They are housed in dormitories in the factory compound. These dormitories are frequently unsanitary. The girls work long hours, have no recreation and on finishing their long day go immediately to bed, oftentimes a bed which a girl who works at night has been sleeping in all day.

As part of its world service for women, the Young Women's Christian Association plans to build dormitories in manufacturing towns where girls may live cheaply under healthful physical and social conditions, to send out secretaries who can introduce recreation into the factory compound and direct games and social life.

This is done with the co-operation of the factories' managers and proprietors. One of the most influential of these is Mrs. Suzuki, the most prominent woman manufacturer in Japan, who is owner and manager of a firm which exported $11,000,000 worth of tea oil to America last year.

Recently Mrs. Suzuki decided to employ one thousand women in her office. She could not find enough well trained ones so she established a permanent school where Japanese girls may be trained to enter the business world. The greatest danger ahead of Japan, she says, is in its growing materialism, and Japan's greatest need, the development of her women.

NATIONAL FRIENDSHIPS DEPEND UPON WOMANKIND

Japanese Diplomat Says Men and Women Cannot Create International Friendliness.

International friendship between nations depends largely upon the friendly feeling between the women of those nations, according to representatives of the Japanese embassy in Washington.

Their theory is that there can be no firm friendship between two nations unless the women of those two countries know and like one another, as co-operation between nations, as in the state and in the family, is based on co-operation between men and women.

Therefore, if Japan and America are to have a real, lasting friendship, to really know and understand one another, the women of the two nations must learn to play together, to study together and to think together.

The Y. W. C. A. is one of the best mediums for bringing about this friendship between the two nations, according to diplomatic representatives of Japan, as that organization is teaching Japanese women recreation, showing them how to enjoy out-of-door life and sports. It is particularly necessary that Japanese women learn to enjoy and appreciate recreation, they say, since the great influx of women into industry and business, as Japanese women, formerly so conservative, are going into business and doing many things which they had never thought of doing before the war.

The Y. W. C. A. has been assured the fullest possible co-operation of the Japanese embassies and the Japanese people in making its "World Service program" for three million dollars to be used for women and girls in the United States, India, China, Japan, South America, Egypt, Siberia, the Near East and Mexico a success.

Y. W. C. A. TRAINS WOMEN

Young women students from forty-four states and nine countries, China, the Philippine Islands, France, Bulgaria, Holland, Russia, Armenia, Canada and Mexico — are registered in the National Training School of the Young Women's Christian Association in New York.

They are studying methods of Y. W. C. A. work with a view to training in positions in Y. W. C. A. in this country or in other of the countries where the Y. W. C. A. is operating, opening and expanding.

SAYS EFFORTS LIKE THOSE OF DROWNING MAN

Took Medicines as Victim Grabs at Straw, Cromwell Says—Trutona Brings Needed Aid.

Paluch, Ky., Dec. 17th.—"Just as a drowning man grabs at a straw, so have I been trying every new medicine I heard of in an effort to get relief from long standing troubles; and the search has not been in vain, for I have found simply marvelous relief in Trutona," J. S. Cromwell, a prominent business man of 312 Jackson street, said recently.

"I've had liver trouble for a long time," he continued, "and last March I had an infection which left me in a terrible condition. I had a bad cough. Constipation bothered me almost continually and I usually felt tired and worn out. If I leaned over for any length of time I would become dizzy when I'd raise up."

"I simply feel like a man made over again, since taking Trutona. My bowels act with clock-like regularity now, the dizzy spells have ceased to occur and the former terrible cough is 100 per cent improved. And Trutona has restored my old time 'pep' too. I can't say too much in favor of Trutona and I feel it my duty to tell the public as it may be the means of some other sufferer gaining relief. Trutona has helped me where other medicines failed and I'm glad to recommend it."

Trutona is now being explained and introduced in Lancaster at R. E. McROBERTS DRUG STORE.

Another Day Of Miracles?

When Christ was on earth he performed miracles by the laying on of hands. But he was Christ, the Son of God.

Today another miracle man is coming into the limelight. He is Billy May, and he performs in an improvised sanitarium provided by the citizens of New Castle, Ind.

No one professes to be able to solve the mystery of the power of his hands. Even medical men are at sea, 'tis said. But his patients include people from all walks of life.

and there seems to be little doubt as to the efficiency of his electrical touch. And, strange to say, there appears to be but few scoffers at this new man of miracles.

Is history repeating itself, or have we really men in existence who, by a touch of their hands, can cause the lame to walk and the sick to become well?

It will be interesting to watch the career of this young man.

If his success continues we might have him touch the profiteer and cause him to reduce his prices to normal.

He might stroke the hairy face of the Red and convert him into a law abiding citizen.

He might cause the capitalist and the laborer to work together in harmony.

And, as the supreme effort of his career, he might wave the wand of his potency over the heads of congress and the president and lead them to an amicable solution of the contested sections of the treaty of peace and the league of nations.

And that, we think, would be some miracle.

Gives Permission To Use Name.

Eugene Palmer, Lawrence, Mass., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me of a cough from which I had been suffering for weeks. You have my full permission to use my name any time you wish in any advertising matter." This fine old family remedy is in great demand right now for colds, croup and bronchial and grip coughs. Foley's Honey and Tar acts almost instantly, cuts the phlegm, soothes the raw and irritated membrane, clears breathing passages.

The Potato.

To its native country, on the mountains of Chile and Peru, writes Jean Henri Fabre, in Field, Forest and Farm, the potato in its wild state is a poor dumbluted thing about as large as a hazelnut. Man takes the worthless wild root to his garden, plants it in rich soil, tends it, waters it; and behold, from year to year the potato thrives more and more, gaining in size and in nutritive properties, and finally becomes a delicious tuber as large as your two fists.

Ancestors of Sheep.

All the present breeds of sheep are probably descended from the Mouflon, the European wild breed. The other leading wild breeds are the Argali of central Asia, and the Bighorn of the Rocky mountains in America; but it is doubtful if any domesticated varieties have been evolved from these. All the recently opened countries have been stocked from Europe, and many from English breeds, with the exception of the Spanish merino.

Combinations in Soap.

The principle of soap making is always the same and is based on the combination of fat and an alkali, as in the case of lard and lye. Variations in soaps are largely due to additions of perfumes, coloring matter and such substances, which have nothing to do with the primary purpose of soap, which is to cleanse.

Mrs. Maude Bogie

THE DARKEST HOUR

By JACK LAWTON.

As Lella sat, wide-eyed and sleepless before her bedroom window, the moon turned the sandy stretch of beach below into gleaming silver. For hours the girl had tossed restlessly upon her pillow, until at last she had arisen and dressed, hoping, when the last guest of the hotel retired within doors, to slip out unseen and settle her problem in the open silence of the night.

Money, not just enough to be comfortable in her own home, but money sufficient to satisfy all the pent-up desires of her heart. She might travel, she might see luxuriously the wondrous sights of the world; she might have at hand the white-trellised garden which had long been her dream—the monotonous office with its weary routine would be forever banished if she would but accept the conditions of her querulous old uncle's will; and its condition was a husband of his choosing.

Lella knew slightly this man whom her uncle favored with his choice, and the "knowing" had caused her sleepless night. Tomorrow she must give her answer. It was the last day of December. She hated the chosen man's sneering smile, she hated the shrewdness of his cold eyes, but she knew that he would willingly enter his part, because of the price in store.

It was like Uncle Jared to select such a man as custodian of his accumulated wealth; this new secretary had won the old man's admiration by his cautious cleverness, as Lella had won it, by her devotion through one of his illnesses.

Now the girl came slowly like a white wreath down the moonlit sands and seated herself there to watch the dawn. When the sun rose, shining across the waters, she must have made her decision. The breeze lifted gently, the curling ends of the long strand which hung over her shoulder, she had not waited to fasten up her beautiful hair for she was sure of being alone. Yet back among the purple shadows another figure moved at her approach. "I beg your pardon," he said frankly. "I thought I should be quite alone here at this hour; or," he bent smiling to look into Lella's face—"have I surprised the spirit of morning?"

"I came—to settle a troubled question," she answered him seriously. "The moonlight seemed to point down this path and I also wished to be alone."

The man lingered. "Why, that was my case exactly," he said. "I was threshing things out by myself up there in the hotel and my disappointment seemed too big for the indoors, so I brought it out."

"Disappointment?" queried the girl. "All at once the stretching beach with its deep shadows was an alarming expanse in which to be alone. Childishly she longed for companionship and companionship was near. This very nice young man with the kind eyes night in some indirect way even helped her in her decision."

"Disappointment?" she questioned again encouragingly and he dropped down beside her on the sands.

"Something," he began, "the hour perhaps, or the sympathetic interest of your tone, argues me to be confidential."

"I have been studying most of my life, you see, with an object to accomplish—the central object of my future career. To the furtherance of this accomplishment has been held out to me an encouraging promise of financial support. I depended upon it for I knew that I could double the money bestowed. Without it, at present, I am helpless, and after years of laboriously getting the necessary money together it would probably be too late for the fulfillment of my dream."

"Last night only I learned that the old friend who had been so enthusiastically interested in my enterprise and who had given the promise of its support, had died during my recent absence and had made a last will leaving all his property in a niece upon condition that she marry his latest secretary, one who had in some way gained the old man's favor. The will, of course, is just. Heretofore I had no knowledge of this niece's existence. My friend, Jared Long, died at this hotel a week ago. I came on here to learn details."

"The unexpected outcome of the will is merely one of life's disappointments. The bitter hardness of it to me lies in the fact of the future forever of my achievement. Pardon me," ended the man abruptly. "I have been musing aloud and had almost forgotten my listener."

Tensely the girl leaned forward, a glimmer of light across the water shone to her eager eyes, her red lips parted breathlessly.

"And if," she asked, "this niece of old Jared's should refuse his request?" "The property then would strangely revert to me," the young man replied. Lella stood up before him. Like a freed creature she stretched her arms forth to the rising sun.

"The darkest hour," she murmured softly, "is just before the dawn. Perhaps your darkest hour of disappointment has already past. And mine—wonder—"

Smiling she looked up into the man's eyes.

"I want to see you again," he said suddenly, imperatively. "I must see you again."

Then side by side the two walked on together into the golden path of the sun.

THE NEW POSTMAN

By EDITH W. GOODWIN.

"Sister's crosser'n' a hen; umphs has a headache and I can't make my noise! all the other boys have gone sliding, and I can't go!"

David Burbank roamed listlessly about the house in search of something to pass away time. A slight cold was the reason he wasn't allowed to go sliding with his chums.

He failed to find anything among his playthings that appealed to him, so he struck a few notes on the piano, but was promptly told by sister Adele "to stop that noise!"

The little fellow wondered what made Adele so cross. She was usually a good pal with her young brother, but today she had only cross words for him.

"What's this?" he queried aloud. "Sister must have forgot to mail her letters; I'll go mail 'em, then maybe she won't be so cross at me."

He had caught sight of a pile of letters, but failed to notice that each one had been opened, and that they were all but one addressed to his sister. He counted them; there were twenty-four in all.

He quickly put on his coat, cap, rubbers and mittens and, taking the letters under his arm, proceeded down the street.

David walked on a little further, then quite suddenly he retraced his steps. He had no idea. Why not play he was the postman, and leave the letters at different houses?

With him, to think was to act, so he didn't stop to consider the fact that he might not leave them at their intended destinations, but quickly ascended the steps of the nearest house and dropped the letter at the top of the pile into the mail box. Then he rang the bell and hurried on.

He repeated this at four or five houses, then decided to try different streets. Ere long he came to the home of Wilbur Downes. Wilbur was a particular friend of Adele's. In fact, although the little brother didn't quite understand the situation, he had been Adele's promised husband, but only a few days previous they had parted with bitter words.

"Guess I'll leave two letters for Wilbur," was the lad's next inspiration. He carefully selected two fat letters from the bunch and dropped them in the box one at a time.

At last he had finished his self-imposed task and turned his steps homeward. The family were at supper. Mother's headache was better; Adele looked pale and was very quiet.

When questioned as to where he had been, David replied that he had gone to walk, as he couldn't think of anything else to do. His mother forced he might have taken more cold and put him to bed soon after the meal was over.

He suddenly awoke after what seemed to him hours and hours. The doorbell was pealing loudly. Pretty soon he heard Adele exclaim rather eagerly:

"Wilbur Downes! I thought you were done coming to see me!"

"I thought so, too, Adele; but I must ask you to explain something; then I'll know just what course to take."

"You'd better come in, then; it's too cold to stand here."

David was very anxious to hear the remainder of the conversation, so he hastily got out of bed and went into the spare chamber on tiptoe. There was a register in the floor right over the parlor stove, and he had on several occasions listened here when Wilbur was calling on Adele. He heard the following:

"I found these two letters in the mail box at home, and I can't imagine how they got there. Perhaps you can tell me."

"Let me see them!" and Adele snatched them away from him. One was addressed to her in Wilbur's hand-writing; the other was addressed to him in her own penmanship.

Her cheeks flamed and she got up and walked the floor. After a few moments she faced Wilbur and asked perceptibly:

"Did you read the one addressed to you?"

"Of course I did, Adele; what else could I do?"

"Well, I surely didn't want you to see it—not yet, anyway. David must have put them there, but what his object was I can't imagine."

"Well, Adele, if you really meant what you wrote, I shall bless David in my dying day. Tell me, dear, did you?"

The listener upstairs was getting excited. First he believed Adele would nearly take his head off the next morning; then it appeared that Wilbur was glad he had got the letters.

All was quiet for a moment or two; then David was sure he heard his sister sobbing. Wilbur was speaking in very low tones and the lad couldn't hear what he said.

When morning came David could hardly speak aloud, and his mother kept him in bed all day. He rather dreaded to have Adele come in; but when she did, instead of the scolding he expected she called him "dear little brother," and even kissed him, and didn't seem a bit cross, either.

The first time he saw Wilbur he was tossed to his shoulder and told that he was the best postman in the world, and that he was proud to think that some day he was to be his own little brother, for Sister Adele had promised to marry him.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ill-afflicting people today can be traced back to kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers, of your blood. Kidney disease is usually indicated by weakness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, salt stones, gravel, rheumatism, eczema and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Harslem Oil Capsules immediately.

The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your drugist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Harslem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Harslem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three times. Money refunded if they do not help you.

How Much You Should Weigh.

A simple way to ascertain one's weight was told recently by Dr. Roy D. Beck of the University of California, in an address before the Los Angeles County Medical association at Los Angeles, Cal. First, put down 110. Then multiply by 5/8 the number of inches by which one's height exceeds five feet. Add the result of the multiplication to the original 110 and the sum is one's "ideal weight."—Popular Science Monthly.

THORNHILL WAGONS

Made In the Heart of the Hardwood Region

DURING the past ten years the automobile, the manure and lime spreader occupied the time of many wagon makers. But Thornhill stuck to the wagon and to the farmer trade. Over rough mountain roads, through swamps, at logging camps, these wagons did duty daily.

Thus the fame of the Thornhill spread, and the demand grew steadily greater.

Tough Highland Hickory

Their plant is located in the very shadow of mighty forests of mountain hickory. The ground is hard—the climate severe. The wood has to fight for life. So it grows sturdy and strong—close-grained and tough—well nigh unbreakable. It has nearly twice the strength of hickory that grows in softer ground, which is usually brittle-brash. The white oak, growing under similar conditions, develops a similar toughness.

The oak and hickory are dried outdoors under shelter and kept there from three to five years—so piled that the air can circulate freely. The sap dries in it.

Some say their location in the heart of the hardwood region is the reason why they can build such a wear-proof wagon. And this is partly true. For good, tough oak and hickory are things no man can make.

But much is due to their modern labor-saving plant. Materials start at one end of the plant and come out a finished wagon at the other. Each man does but a single task, and he does that task to perfection.

A Clan of Master Builders

But to the men are due many of the Thornhill long-wearing, light-running features. Years ago they attracted to their plant the masters of wagon building. They asked these men for improvements, and the men who made them received their just reward.

Together they worked out more improvements than had ever been made in the twenty years that went before.

Let us show you a Thornhill and demonstrate the value of Thornhill construction. (600-N)

ONE-FOURTH WORLD'S WOMEN IN CHINA

Seventy Per Cent. Employees in Shanghai Cotton Mills Women and Children Working Twelve Hour Shifts.

One-fourth of the women in the world are Chinese—200,000,000 of them. They are going into industry in large numbers to work long hours and for little money.

In Shanghai, for instance, seventy per cent. of the employees in the cotton mills are women and children. Working hours for spinners are from six in the morning until six at night and from six at night until six in the morning. Weavers work from 5:30 in the morning until seven at night and the wages are from ten to twenty cents a day. Hundreds of women are employed in silk flature mills, standing hour after hour washing cocoons in basins of boiling water in the excessively hot rooms necessary for apartments where fine silk is spun. In Canton alone, there are 150,000 women in factories at a maximum wage of forty cents a day for women and of fifteen cents a day for girls.

As part of its program of world service for women the National Young Women's Christian Association is expecting in put on its staff of secretaries in China an expert on industrial conditions who will develop social work in factories, and work to improve conditions for women employees. This work will include the introduction of recreation and social life among the workers and of health features and educational classes.

Y. W. C. A. STUDENTS TEACHING IN CHINA

Physical Training School Maintained in Shanghai.

The vast majority of Chinese men remember their mothers as cripples. Many a girl wanders into a mission school who has not had her own feet bound, but has never seen a woman of her own class who could walk, and, therefore, she walks in a most ungainly fashion—scarcely conscious of her natural feet.

The Chinese Medical Association—an Association composed only of Chinese physicians mostly graduates from American and English institutions—have asked the entire educated community of the country to co-operate in better health for the children of China. All the Mission Boards operating in China felt that one of the greatest contributions the Young Women's Christian Association could offer to the health of China would be to establish a normal school for the training of physical directors.

Accordingly, in Shanghai, which is the greatest port in China, the national committee established such a school in 1914. The school has won favor with all educationalists, both missionary and government. There have already been nine graduates from this school. Miss Ying Mei Chun, a graduate of the Wellesley School of Physical Education, has been dean of the school. Graduates of the school are scattered from Canton to Peking, teaching with conspicuous success in twelve mission and government schools.

The Woman's Club met Thursday afternoon at their rooms on Lexington avenue. There was a full attendance and after the business meeting a social hour was thoroughly enjoyed. The hostesses were Mrs. J. S. Gilbert and Mrs. W. M. Elliott. Mrs. Gilbert resigned as president and Mrs. J. E. Stornes was elected to fill her place, and Mrs. W. B. Hurton, as vice president.

First Mirror Was Water.
Mirrors were probably invented long before the comb, but the mirror, the one toilet article without which woman could not exist, must come from a very early period. Perhaps a clear pool allowed curious women to see a first view of her face, though we must say that she is not the only creature to exist, for a certain gentleman named Narcissus gazed at his reflection in the still water, and caring not to love with his beauty that he played away and died.

Wilkinson-Metcalf.

Although they were married in Danville on July 25th, announcements have just been issued telling of the union of Miss Gertrude Wilkinson and Mr. Dewey Metcalf. Rev. W. H. Smith, pastor of the Danville Christian church, performed the ceremony, and when he did so he said that it was the first time he had ever married a couple where the bride had issued the license. At that time Miss Wilkinson was a deputy under County Clerk Kelly J. Francis. The object in keeping the marriage a secret was a desire on the part of the groom to get some business affairs straightened up and secondly that they might enjoy the pleasure of breaking the news to their friends and relatives later. They succeeded well in keeping the secret for it was not until some two weeks ago that a small knot of the wedding. This is proof conclusive that there is at least one woman who can keep a secret.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wilkinson of this city, and is an exceedingly fine young woman. She is a handsome brunette and very popular. Mr. Metcalf is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Metcalf, also of this city, but at present is engaged in business at Paint Lick. He is a promising young business man with a host of friends. This paper wishes the happy pair all the good things that can come to them and hopes that their journey through life will be more and more pleasant and profitable as the years come and go.—Interior Journal.

Menace to Locusts.

Locusts in Algeria have found a dangerous enemy in a fly which follows them and lays its eggs where they lay theirs.

Well, Why?

Why is it that the man, who has his picture taken standing beside a vase of flowers set on a table covered with a lace dolly is always the man who is reported to the police and the newspapers by his wife as among those missing?

Stork Welcomed in Holland.

A stork is treated with great respect in Holland. The house selected by the stork for a resting place is considered fortunate, and special facilities are provided by the householders to enable it to build a nest comfortably. At The Hague many of these birds are maintained at public expense.

Keep Out the Moisture.

A very effective agent for moisture-proofing wood has been found in an aluminum leaf coating. This coating practically insulates the wood against any change in atmospheric conditions, and is particularly valuable for use where accurate form and balance must be maintained, as would be necessary in an airplane propeller.

Cura and Feathers.

From the dawn of human history furs and feathers have been used to satisfy our taste and need for clothing and adornment. Our most primitive ancestors were commentators in the language of birds and the pelts of animals and admired them for their possibilities in furnishing himself and his family with raiment and adornment, and so do we.

The Sex of an Egg.

According to the Paris Academy of Science the sex of eggs laid by purchased fowls may be determined by weight and size. A test is to hold the egg in the left hand in the sun or close to an electric or gas light. Shade the end of the egg with the right hand, and look for the air space or "settling" (a dark, watery spot larger than a ten-cent piece); if this is found on the top it is a male, but if lower down the side it is a female egg.

Man vs. Shellfish.

If a human being possessed strength as great in proportion to his size as that of the shellfish the average man would be able to lift the enormous weight of 2,000,000 pounds by pulling in the same degree as a blimpet. And if the man pulled in the same degree as the cockle he would sustain a weight of no less than 3,000,000 pounds.

Life.

Life is beautiful, and it should be lived in beauty. It has, and must have its shadows, to be sure, but there is a beauty in the shadow as well as in the light and glimmer of the sun. Sometimes there are sorrows that are good for us, because they clear our hearts of selfishness and teach us to sympathize with our fellow human beings. Grief has made many a heart gentle that was not so before.

Our Bounded Duty.

Man's bounded duty is everywhere and in all things to forward the progress of humanity. The supreme virtue is sacrifice—to think, work, fight, suffer, where our lot lies, not for ourselves but others, for the victory of good over evil.—Mazzini.

Make Bells.
The science of bell casting has been practiced in one English foundry for nearly 350 years.

To Start a Clock.
The stopping of a clock is due to clogged wheels. When you remove a piece of white cotton with kerosene oil and place it inside the clock case. Probably at the end of a week the cotton will be black with dust that has been loosened by the fumes of the oil and the clock will run as well as ever.

Wrinkles.
There are many ways in the open air, but the only one that is sure to give it is the result of improper care. The skin may be improved by the use of a cream. If it is too dry, use a little exercise, and the wrinkles may be greatly reduced. These blessings, which are the result of a healthy life, will be yours if you make any use of the cream, an advocate of this cream is Dr. J. C. Evans.

Analogous.
Spending a dollar before it is earned is like eating today the egg that is to be laid tomorrow.

Table Pleasures Not for Them.
Ten, with fruit in summer and cheese in winter, constitutes the nourishment of the poorer classes in Persia.

Fish Live in Ice.
During several months of each year some of the great rivers of Siberia are frozen solid to the bottom, but the fishes imprisoned in the ice maintain their vitality and resume their active life when the ice melts in the spring.

Listening In.
A western man after eleven years of experiments has invented a device that enables a user of a party telephone line to identify any other subscriber who may be listening to his conversation.

Got Him Guessing.
"I got my troubles," replied the new waiter. "When men have a friendly scrap about paying the check I can spot the right man to hand it to every time. But with women I make all kinds of fool mistakes."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Dolls Long Popular.
There is ample evidence that the use of dolls as an assistance to the education of the young child is one of the most remote times. Among the native tribes of Africa it was the custom of married women to carry a doll with them until they had a child, after the doll was discarded.

"Writ Sarsaparilla"
Answer to a question as to whether it is safe to allow a child to sleep together the head and feet of the child, the doctor of the day says that the child of that age is a child in mind and body, and it is very safe for the child to have a separate bed with a sheet every night.

Heat Burns Gravel.
Gravel of standards is made of concrete, particularly siliceous, and has a tendency for the soil to be in extreme heat, which is the concrete. Accept of the suggestion that gravel be covered with a layer of sand, but if the gravel is covered with a layer of sand, the heat will be held in place by the sand. Gravel may also be covered with a layer of sand, but the heat will be held in place by the sand. Gravel may also be covered with a layer of sand, but the heat will be held in place by the sand.

Prof. Ben Evans Writes Interesting Letter.

Cartersville, Ky., Dec. 15, 1919.
Hamilton Valley is in the grip of "Old Crimp" today and yesterday. People are Hog Wild about their high priced tobacco at Lancaster Warehouse, and the Rural School has to stop on account of the inclement weather, swollen streams and impassable thoroughfares. Your scribe suspects the children are handy stripping tobacco these booming days for the "Pumpkin Pushers", "Pin Hookers" or tobacco speculators are very much in evidence in Hamilton or Treasure Valley now, but are not buying much as of days of yore.

The Flocks are becoming as wise as their Guides.
Petty Speculators are also in evidence buying the school boys furs cheap and selling high.

Hog Killing is over and white Mollasses or Lard is plentiful, but no fish to fry.

Your Scribe is long on Opossum and Coon meat since Hog Killing. He has been up here so long that he feels that is short on the "wing of an ox".

Uncle Sam has appointed Old Ben Evans a Census Enumerator for part of Paint Lick, so his school is closed for a while.

The Government wants to know every ten years where it is "at", so some has to take an inventory of population and products so "Uncle Sam" wants to make a big and fast delve commencing Friday January the 2nd, A. D. 1920, and every one who helps the enumerators in their work will be rendering Patriotic service to their country.

From Old Ben Evans,

Agreed.
"We want more honest men in politics," exclaimed the reformer. "That's right," agreed the practical politician. "The more honest men we have in politics the less politics will cost."

YOU NEED A SPRING TONIC

That tired, worn-out feeling is caused by a run-down system. You need an iron tonic to rebuild tissue quickly—to send rich, red blood coursing thru your body to supply the elements that have become exhausted.

Acid Iron Mineral is prescribed by physicians in all cases where a tonic is indicated, because it is the most powerful natural iron tonic known.

Acid Iron Mineral is prepared by nature and comes to you just as it comes from our natural medicinal iron deposits in Minnesota—the only known deposit in the world—and is not to be confused with chemically prepared salts. It is the only iron tonic that will not injure the stomach or cause ill effects.

Get a bottle from your drugist today, take as directed, and in a few days you will notice an improvement in your health.
